

Who is Bluewater:

Congress and the Whitehouse have identified critical and emerging dual use technologies that must be accelerated in order to compete globally while protecting our nation from rapidly advancing, well organized adversaries.

Bluewater has been a leader for decades in developing and accelerating high growth companies focused on critical and emerging dual use technology for cyber risk, intelligence and national security. Their investments into one of our nation's most unique and comprehensive growth accelerator ecosystems, meets the needs for early-stage to mid-maturity companies, allowing for critical expedited growth.

Bluewater works with its trusted network to identify and accelerate, market leading technologies and create winning "go to market" strategies, that often solve critical organization scaling models. Bluewater's proven proprietary network includes, seasoned entrepreneurs, a highly experienced team of market professionals, investors and bankers, national policy, and agency leaders. Thus, allowing for decades of experience in a broad range of areas; including national security, cyber, and intelligence.

Growth Acceleration:

Bluewater's focus is on identifying and selecting those companies who are adopting, integrating, and accelerating dual use technology for cyber risk, intelligence, and national security.

Bluewater's investments into unique government and industry partnerships allows us to select and accelerate strong technology companies. Their advanced business model allows companies to partner with capital markets, Congress, and the United States Government. Bluewater's deep knowledge of these rapidly evolving sectors accelerates and scales a company.

Selected companies are on the cutting edge of critical and emerging National Security technologies and must be carefully orchestrated in order for dual use stakeholders to benefit from their investment and our nation from the accelerated advancement.

